1 Introduction

It has been very busy in the first three months in office. I started my transition unofficially in April – attending meetings, meeting administrators, and beginning readings, but the learning curve has still been steep as this is one of the broadest reaching portfolios. I started my term by jumping right into sexual assault policy and education/prevention meetings, continuing projects from my predecessor, discovering and starting projects of my own, attending 2 conferences, speaking at events, and hiring four staff members. Projects and priorities from my goals, both continued from last year and my own for this year are included in this document as well as miscellaneous projects that have come up, as is the norm in such a wide-spanning portfolio.

2 Goals for the Year

2.1 Campaigns and Consultations

2.1.1 UBC Sexual Assault Policy

- i. Holding multiple sessions for students that double as information sessions and consultations. The first will be an informative portion, allowing students to ask questions, the second half will allow students to write their feedback down in forms to be collected. Several days prior to the date of consultation, emails asking that students read the policy will be sent out. Data will be collated into a report with recommendations based on the feedback and given to UBC.
- ii. A campaign in collaboration with the SASC to bring awareness of recent UBC Sexual Assault Policy, as well as the consultations, to students, consisting of print material, boothing, and social media blasts.
 1. Design print material in collaboration with SASC and VPX office.
 2. Partner with university events to booth and hand out print materials.

Progress: Campaign materials are being designed in collaboration with the VPX Office, SASC, Communications, and Policy Advisor – final versions have been sent to Graphics. Flyers will consist of an informative portion and a tear-able portion to submit written responses regarding AMS Recommendations on the Policy. Outreach logistics are being finalized – we have emailed several UBC back-to-school programming coordinators about distribution and boothing. Residence Life will be emailed as well to inquire about distribution.

2.1.2 Blackboard Connect

- iii. UBC's contract with Connect expires in 2019, and CTLT wishes for the process of seeking the next Learning Management System (LMS) to reflect what both students and faculty want. The AMS has been tasked with connecting CTLT with various student groups – ie, VP Academics Caucus, Departmental Clubs, AMS Clubs – as well as the general student body. Aiming for a range across programs to best represent departmental student needs.
 1. In collaboration with CTLT and the Academic Affairs Commissioner.

- iv. A small campaign of social media blasts, collaborative boothing, and print material to inform students of these consultations and the importance of student input.
 - 1. In collaboration with CTLT and the Academic Affairs Commissioner.

Progress: Have met with the new Digital Learning Ecosystem student team – coined “Student Squad” – regarding collaboration with AMS Communications in the form of email newsletters and Nest boothing. General engagement strategic planning was also brainstormed during meeting. Updates and call for constituency support to be presented with Executive Updates at AMS Council. A presentation to VP Academic Caucus on the project and importance of student consultation is in the works to be presented by end of August. Information to be included in FirstWeek kits as well.

2.1.3 Open Educational Resources

- v. Expanding #textbookbrokeBC to include more depth of information on Open Educational Resources. Last year was introductory – we began with, “win free textbooks because they are expensive!” and “how can a textbook be free?”, and we now want to transition to, “how can you make your/future students’ textbooks free?”
 - 1. Utilize VPAUA staff, VP Academic Caucus, and Councillors for boothing, and re-use previous year’s materials.
 - 2. Creating a sign-up email list for students interested in OER advocacy and utilizing it for 2nd term’s campaign, as well as to hold brainstorm/strategy sessions.
 - 3. Utilizing this campaign to tie into the Affordability Campaign run by the VP External’s office – timing-wise, it will serve as a good preface to post-secondary affordability.
- vi. In collaboration with the VP External Office and the UBC Bookstore, host a “The Price Is Right” session during the Affordability Campaign – students are called up to guess the price of textbooks and degrees.
 - 1. Acquire textbooks – from Bookstore, personal collections, etc.
 - 2. Seek an entertaining host from student groups.

Progress: Currently in the process of creating a presentation for VP Academic Caucus. Have also had discussions with Education Committee to seek feedback and additional campaign suggestions. In the process of contacting Debbie Harvey of Campus Services (Bookstore) for support in TextbookBroke campaign and Price is Right campaign, as well as seeking staff availabilities for the first week of school.

2.1.4 Academic Experience Survey

- vii. Creating a report of the 15/16 data and releasing it to interested stakeholders (constituencies, AMS internally, university administration) and presenting the results to council at the first meeting in August.
 - 1. An interactive presentation in the style of “Family Feud” to engage councillors is being prepared.
 - 2. Organizing a VP Academic Caucus meeting to present AES results in addition to other programming.

- viii. Standardizing questions for comparable data from year to year as well as questions on relevant current projects which may not require long-term annual data.
 - 1. One section of questions to be asked every year – for example, discrimination, services usage, etc. Second section with “topical” questions – for example, student preference on Fall Reading Breaks, student experience with new Collaborative Care Model.
 - a. Scheduling meetings in mid-first term to discuss potential question topics with stakeholders while consulting with Insights West on question specifics.
 - b. In collaboration with Insights West, the VP Students Office, Wellness at UBC, Access & Diversity, Counselling Services, Undergraduate Societies, etc. Any organization with a stake in questions asked.

Progress: Met with Insights West representative to go over report as well as to receive access to online portal to allow further analysis into data. Presentation to council complete. AMS AES Report complete. In order to better engage council with AES Data, have created an interactive game for the presentation to council to be played at first meeting of August. Initial discussion with stakeholders in AES has begun regarding standardization of questions.

Progress: Approached Finance Leadership Office regarding potential for proposal. Prepared proposal for presentation to both AMS Executive and UBC Finance Leadership Office.

2.2.3 Awards Database

- v. Creating a searchable database of awards available to students, hosted by either the AMS or UBC website. The primary goal is the availability of a database for students. This will allow students to better inform themselves of avenues for financial aid outside of student loans. This goal is based on the recommendation from council 3 years ago requesting an awards database. Project was not pursued because UBC said they were working on it, but no progress has been made in the last 3 years.
 - 1. Meet with Enrolment Services
 - a. Ask about where it stands on their priorities list, ask about potential locations for hosting the database – AMS website, UBC hosted.
 - b. Seek ways to support the development, as well as advise on the organization of content. (How can students sift through the different awards? Under which categories?)

Progress: Met with Enrolment Services to discuss the possibility of Awards Database as well as to assess if it was within their priorities – it is. Currently collaborating on the organization of content on the Awards Database, which is estimated to be completed by 2017, to be hosted on a UBC Website.

5 Conferences

5.1 The Canadian Association of Colleges & Universities Student Services (CACUSS)

This conference, held in the middle of June, brought together Student Services professionals from around Canada, to Winnipeg. From the sessions, I learned about other universities' and colleges' experience in working with Provincial sexual assault bills, developing their own sexual assault policies, co-curricular transcript implementation, how to constructively organize work to better promote wellbeing and success, and the role of education in Truth and Reconciliation. In addition, I participated in discussions on research surrounding the impacts of a Fall Reading Break, alcohol culture in universities/colleges, and holistic approaches toward supporting student Wellbeing, particularly in the Academic Policy area. Lastly, I created made connections with student union executives as well as student services professionals from across Canada.

5.2 Collaborative Conversations: Scheduling Today for Tomorrow's Learning

I was a speaker at this one-day conference-type event held by UBC. It gathered the scheduling/timetable representatives from every faculty to provide feedback on technological and higher level challenges of course scheduling at UBC, build a space of discussion for what to be prioritized when scheduling, as well as provide them with the opportunity to hear from other stakeholders – for example, students, the registrar, and IT, and more.

5.3 Festival of Learning

The Festival of Learning focused on pedagogical techniques, the development of pedagogical tools, and open educational resources. I was only in attendance for one day of the Festival of Learning – but was able to attend numerous sessions on open educational resources and on equitable learning. From the sessions, I was able to learn more about supporting and cooperating with faculty members to best promote OERs, the logistic in developing an OER as a faculty member, and ways in which learning material supports equitable learning. Main takeaways from this conference were the faculty side of OER promotion and development, allowing the AVP Academic and myself to better understand the barriers and learning surrounding faculty support of OERs, which will lend to the faculty-appealing side to our strategic advocacy planning.
