BY YEAR

1915 -

The Alma Mater Society first came into existence when the McGill University College in British Columbia opened its doors in 1907. From 1907 to 1915 it was run under the auspices of the College, with faculty representation on the A.M.S. Executive. Indeed, the 1915 McGill Annual wrote of the Alma Mater Society:

"This is the organization that would be called 'The Associated Students' in most colleges. Every student is a member by virtue of the fact that he pays the annual fee of two dollars. The fee is collected by the registrar with other college fees at the request of the students and is then given into the control of the executive. This fee is supposed to cover the membership of a student in all 'open' social and athletic organizations of the college though 'closed' organizations such as the different classes may collect special dues. The society holds two regular general meetings during the year to receive reports of the officers and executive. The nomination and election of officers constitute an important feature of the year's activities: democracy has justified itself in the fact that those elected have always been thoroughly well fitted for their offices. The executive is composed of the officers, class presidents, representatives of clubs and two Faculty representatives. It has general control over the policy of all student activities and full control of finance. The treasurer receives the fees from the registrar and collects the 'gate' at all open social and athletic events and, under the direction of the executive, allots the available money to the different societies. Thus the usual financial prosperity of the student body is distributed uniformly and without friction."

The A.M.S. (McGill) prospered in the years 1907 to 1915 as enrollment increased and student activities expanded. With the opening of the University of British Columbia imminent, a committee of three, acting with a Faculty representative, Professor H.T. Logan, was appointed to draw up a constitution for the student body of the new university. Over the summer of 1915, Sherwood Lett (AMS President), Evelyn Story (Assistant Secretary & W.U.S. President), and John E. Mulhern () drafted the constitution of the Alma Mater Society of the University of British Columbia which was provisionally adopted until 1916.

Thus, while the Alma Mater Society has existed from 1907, a new, self governing A.M.S. of the University of BC was born on September 30, 1915.
